GENEALOGY

First Edition
December 1934

This collection of information on relatives was begun more than a decade ago in order (1) to learn more about earlier generations, (2) to keep up-to-date on the later generations, and (3) to maintain a record of names and dates taken from family bibles or other authentic sources which may not be accessible in the years ahead. Every effort has been made to obtain accurate and complete data on: first and second names (legal or christened names, not nicknames); dates of birth, marriage and death; places of birth and burial. This information, even though very meager in many respects, may be of some interest to those who have a thirst for knowledge of their ancestors and unseen, or little known, living relatives. A limited supply of additional copies are available.

There appears to be no standard arrangement for genealogical data. In explanation of the compact form used here: W=wife, H=husband, M=married, NR=no record. The place of birth is indicated below the birthday and the place of burial is indicated below the date of death. The name of a relative by marriage is given below that of husband or wife, if known. The number of children are given so as to indicate descendents, if any, and also to clarify cases of more than one marriage.

Each passing year the collection of such information is rendered more difficult by the scattering of the younger members and the departing of the older members. Possibly the only source of additional information on the earlier generations lies in the memories of the remaining members of the third and fourth generations. These sources might well be searched thoroughly before it is too late.

Any additions, corrections, or suggestions for future editions will be greatly appreciated by
